

Wax tart warmers are nothing new, but recently Glade introduced their new Wax Melt Electric Warmer putting scented wax tarts back into the mainstream spotlight. The cool thing about Glade's wax melt warmers is that they plug right into any electrical socket – no flame required! And there's even an on/off switch. But just because you buy or own a commercial warmer doesn't mean you have to stick with mass produced wax tarts. In fact, you can make your own and gift with a wax melt warmer like the one from Glade or solo to someone you know who is already in love with wax tart melts and owns a warmer.

Christmas Cabernet fragrance oil
Dance of the Sugar Plum Fairy fragrance oil
Christmas Cabin fragrance oil
Cranberry Relish fragrance oil
Peppermint Fluff fragrance oil
Pumpkin Cheesecake fragrance oil

Supplies:

Crafters Choice™ Break-A-Way Clamshell
digital kitchen scale
kitchen thermometer
 microwave or double boiler
 glass pyrex measure cup utensil for stirring
full sheet sticker paper for printable labels

Instructions:

This recipe yields one clam shell of wax tarts.

Start by weighing out the wax, then melting in a double boiler or incrementally in a glass pyrex measuring cup in the microwave. Once the wax reaches 185 degrees F – this is the recommended temperature to get the best fragrance from your wax – weigh out and stir in the fragrance oil.

Once the wax has cooled to 110 degrees F, pour into the clam shell and allow to set up at room temperature until it has cooled and hardened completely.

Now simply label as desired - print your choice of labels from one of the pages below - as desired and gift to your family friends!
